Note.—Since in many of our Parishes it is the custom to read only one Lesson in Evening Prayer; and since the Lessons from the Epistles are, following immemorial custom, assigned to Evening Prayer in the Lectionary, it is desirable that the Lessons appointed for the Evening shall be read to the Morning congregation as well, and vice versa. To do this, the first Lectionary may be used for a year, in order; and for the next year in reverse order; then, the second Lectionary for two years, after the same manner: or else, the suggestion in the footnote to page xxii may be followed. The third Lectionary is planned for only one year's use, and for optional and occasional use, when it is desired to include the Gospel or Epistle for the day in the second Lesson; and note, that the Old Testament Lessons therein are correlated to the New Testament Lessons.
